

Caring

They are caring to me. An example of this is that, even though they live in Ohio, they come out to see us more than 4 times a year!

Risk-taker

Grandma and Granddad are world travelers. They climbed the Sydney bridge (439 ft!); have been to many different and exotic places, such as: Myanmar, Namibia, Peru and many more; and have even done things like riding camels!

Open-minded

Bob and Molly Hillery do many things an average person would not do. For example, they travel to new places, try new things (food and otherwise), and are very open-minded about new cultures and doing what the locals do where ever they are.

Reflective

They show being reflective through three ways, one being the Mrs. Dog and Peter Rabbit (my stuffies they take with them on their travels to remind them of me!) books they write and publish for me that showcase their travels. Another is that, when they are over, they show us pictures of their travels and tell us about the places they have been. The last way is their website (tykesabroad.com) where they post blogs about all their travels for all the world to see.

Grandma and Granddad have taught and shown me many things about the world today by sharing memories of their travels. They also have been very generous to us. For example, they have bought us Disneyland annual passports for many years because they know we love Disneyland. And I love them very much!

Molly and Bob Hillery, my grandparents, travel all over the world for about 3/4 of the year. They are Carrying Risk-Takers, Open-Minded, and Reflective.
